of Bourbon, under an act of Assembly,

entitled, "An act to reduce into one

the several acts to ascertain the boundaries of, and for procressing lands,"

(BY AUTHORITY.)

AN ACT

To provide for light houses and buoys in the cases therein mentioned.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America, in Congress assembled, That as soon as the proprietor of the south end or point of St. Simon's island in the state of Georgia, shall convey by good and sufficient titles, unto the United States, so much land on the south end of the said island, as the President of the United States shall deem sufficient and most proper for the site and accommodation of a light house; and the jurisdiction of the land, so to be conveyed, shall have been ceded to the United States, by the state of Georgia, it shall be the duty of the secretary of the treasury to provide by contract, which shall be approved by the President of the United States, for building a light house thereon, and for furnishing the same with all necessary supplies, and also to agree for the salaries or wages of the person or persons who may be appointed by the President for the superintendance and care of the same. And the President is hereby authorized to make the said appointments.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That the secretary of the treasury, under the direction of the President, be authorized and required to cause to be placed a buoy or buoys at such place or places on or near the bar of St. Simon's, as may conduce to the safe pilotage of vessels to and from the ports of Brunswick and Frederica.

Sec. 3. And be it further enacted, That it shall be lawful for the secretary of the treasury to cause to be rebuilt in such manner as he may deem expedient, the light house at Clark's point within the town of New-Bedford in the state of Massachusetts.

Sec. 4. And be it further enacted, That the Secretary of the treasury shall be, and he is hereby authorized and required to cause a sufficient light house to be erected, on Five-mile point so called, near the entrance of the harbour of New-Haven in the state of Connecticut, and to appoint a keeper, and otherwise provide for such light house at the expence of the United States. Provided, That sufficient land for the accommodation of such light house can be obtained at a reasonable price, and the legislature of Connecticut shall cede the jurisdiction over the same to the United States.

Sec. 5. And be it further enacted, That there be appropriated for the purpose of defraying the charges and expences to be incurred in executing the two first sections of this act, the sum of seven thousand dollars;—for rebuilding the light house as aforesaid, at Clark's point, a sum not exceeding two thousand five hundred dollars; and for the erection of a light house at the Five-mile point aforesaid, a sum not exceeding two thousand five hundred dollars; which sums shall be paid out of any monies in the treasury not otherwise appropriated.

AN ACT

Providing for the expences of the Civil Government of Louisiana.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That all the monies which have been, or which shall be received by any officer of the United States, on account of duties or taxes within the territories ceded to the United States, by the treaty of the thirtieth of April, eighteen hundred and three, shall be paid into the treasury, and accounted for in the same manner as other public monies.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That for the purpose of making a reasonable compensation to the person or persons, in whom the powers of civil government, heretofore exercised by the officers of the said territories under the Spanish and French governments, have been vested by the President of the U. S. States, and also for defraying the other civil expences of the said territories, from the time when possession of the same was obtained by the United States to the time when form of government shall, under the authority of Congress, be established therein, a sum not exceeding twenty thousand dollars, to be expended under the direction of the President of the United States, and to be accounted for as other public monies, shall be, and the same hereby is appropriated, to be paid out of any monies in the treasury not otherwise appropriated.

PLOT AGAINST BONAPARTE—ARREST OF MOREAU.

LEGISLATIVE BODY—Paris, Feb. 17.

At two o'clock the counsellor of state, Regnaud, De St. Jean D'Angely, Segur and Berlier, were introduced. Regnaud ascended the Tribune, and read the following Report made this morning by the grand judge to the First Consul:

Report of the Grand Judge to the Government.

Paris, 29th Pluviose.

Citizen First Consul,

"New plots have been formed by England; they were framed in the midst of the peace she had sworn to maintain; and when the violated the treaty of Ameins, she relied much less upon her force than upon the success of her machinations. But the government was watchful; the eye of police followed the steps of the enemy's agents, and traced the measures of those whom their gold or their intrigues had corrupted.

"At length the plan appeared complete; already, no doubt, they thought at London that they heard the explosion of that mine which had been dug under our feet. At least the most sanguine rumors were in circulation there, and the most guilty hopes were cherished.

"All at once the framers of the conspiracy are seized—proofs accumulate, and of such force and evidence, that they will carry conviction to every mind.

"Georges, and his band of assassins, had remained in the pay of England; his agents still overran La Vendee, the Morbihan, and the Cotes du Nord, and vainly fought for partisans—the moderation of the government and the laws had deprived them of them.

"Pichegru, unmasked by the events which preceded the 18th Fructidor, year 5, unmasked more than any thing by that correspondence which general Moreau had addressed to the Directory—Pichegru had carried his hatred against his country into England.

"In the year eight he was with Wellington, in the suite of the enemy's armies, in order to ally himself with the brigands of the south.

"In the year nine he conspired with the committee of Bareuth; and since the peace of Ameins, he was still the council and the hope of the enemies of France.

"British perfidy associates Georges with Pichegru—the infamous Georges, with Pichegru whom France had esteemed, and whom she long believed to be incapable of treason.

"In the year eleven a criminal reconciliation unites Pichegru and General Moreau, two men between whom honor ought to have placed an eternal hatred. The police seized at Calais one of their agents at the moment he was returning a second time to England. That man is in the hands of the police, with all the papers which establish the reality of a reconciliation that would have been inexplicable if the ties of it had not been broken by crime.

"At the arrest of this agent, general Moreau appears for a moment agitated. He takes under hand measures to ascertain whether government is informed upon the subject—but every thing is still silent, and restored himself to tranquility, he conceals from government an event which was of a nature to excite their vigilance. He conceals it, when even Pichegru is called publicly to the councils of the British ministry, when with a degree of eclat he unites himself to the enemies of France.

"Government would not see in his silence any thing but the fear of an avowal which would have humiliated him, in the same manner as they had seen in his absence from public affairs in his equivocal connections, and in his more than indigree speeches, only ill-humor and vain discontent.

"General Moreau, who was liable to suspicion because he treated secretly with the enemy of his country, who upon this more than legitimate suspicion, would have been arrested at any other epoch, was suffered to enjoy in tranquility his honors, an immense fortune, and the benefits of the Republic.

"Yet events prelief—Lajollais, the friend and confidant of Pichegru, goes secretly from Paris to London, returns from London to Paris, carries to Pichegru the ideas of general Moreau, brings back to general Moreau the ideas and designs of Pichegru and his associates. The brigands of Georges prepare in the very city of Paris all that is necessary to the execution of their common projects.

"A spot is fixed upon between Dieppe and Trepont remote from all uneasiness and all superintendance, where the brigands of England, conducted by the English ships of war, were to land without being perceived; there they were to find men bribed to receive them, men paid to guide them during the night from station to station agreed upon, and to bring them even to Paris.

"At Paris an asylum is prepared for them, in houses hired before hand, where are trusty guardians; they have them in several quarters, in several streets, at Chaillot, in the Rue de Bacq, in the Faubourg St. Marceau, &c.

"A first landing is effected—it was Georges returns to the coast to assist at the landing of Gouffet St. Victor (condemned by the sentence passed upon the affair of the 3d Nivose,) and ten other brigands.

"In the early part of this month, a third landing is effected; it is Pichegru, enne.

Lej Hail, Armand, Gaillard, the brother of Ragnaud, Jean Marie, one of the first confidants of Georges, and some other brigands of that kind. Georges, with Joyau, called d'Affar, St. Vincent, and Picot, called the Petit, precede this third debarkation—the union is effected at the farm of la Poterie.

"A fourth landing is expected. The vessels are in sight; but contrary winds prevent their approach; but a few days passed since they made reconnoitering signals.

"Georges and Pichegru arrive at Paris; they are lodged in the same house, surrounded by some thirty brigands, commanded by Georges. They see general Moreau; we know the place, the day, the hour where the first conference is held. A second rendezvous was agreed upon, and does not take place. A third, a fourth, took place in the very house of general Moreau.

"This appearance of Georges and Pichegru at Paris, these conferences with general Moreau are established by incontestable and multiplied proofs. The steps of Georges and Pichegru are followed from house to house to those who assisted in their debarkation; those who, in the dead of night, conducted them from port to port; those who gave them an asylum in Paris; their confidants, accomplices—Lajollais their principal go-between, and General Moreau are seized. The effects and the papers of Pichegru are seized, and the police is following his steps with great activity.

"England wished to overturn the government, and by overturning it, to effect the ruin of France, and the abandonment of it to ages of civil war and confusion. But to overthrow a government supported by the affection of thirty millions of citizens, and surrounded by a strong, a brave and faithful army, was a task above the power of England and of Europe; hence England did not pretend to effect it, but by assassinating the First Consul, and by covering that assassination the shade of a man whom the remembrance of his services still defended.

"I must add, that the citizens ought to feel no uneasiness. The greater part of the brigands are arrested, the rest have fled, and are warmly pursued by the police. No class of citizens, no branch of the administration is stained by a single suspicion.

"I shall not give more ample details in this report; you have seen the papers; you will direct that all be placed under the eye of justice.

The Grand Judge, Minister of Justice.

(Signed) "REGNIER."

NEW-YORK, April 25.

Capt. Pinkham has furnished the editors of this paper with London papers of the 16th ult. They state besides what we have extracted, that the king was so far recovered, that he took his usual walk in the queen's garden—That no less than twenty-seven more officers of distinction had been arrested for conspiracy, among whom were generals Perino, Macdonald, and Massena.

Accounts had also been received from the British squadron off Boulogne, of the capture of 5 gun boats, the linking of others, together with French transports.

Capt. Pinkham informs that the British had destroyed, captured, sunk, or drove ashore, a considerable number of gun-boats, belonging to the French qui drou at Boulogne.

The subsequent articles comprise whatever is interesting in the London paper of the 15th:

London, March 15.

WAR WITH SPAIN. It is reported in the political circles at the west end of the town, that this event is at no great distance. Indeed we have been confidently assured that letters of marque and reprisal are now preparing to be issued against the ships and vessels belonging to that power.

There are letters in town which state that the Emperor of Russia has by his ambassador at Constantinople intercessed with his good offices to the release of the officers and crew of the U. S. frigate Philadelphia.—Aurora.

Capt. Knowles, arrived at Boston, 68 days from the Isle of France, informs that the news of the destruction of Benalouen had been confirmed; and that an official account had been received of the surrender of Pondicherry to the English.

The French troops who defended the place for a time with great bravery, were allowed the terms of capitulation which they had asked for.

A letter dated Cove of Cork, January 6, received in town on Saturday, mentions that the noted Arthur O'Connor made his escape from Croshaven about three weeks ago. This place is in the mouth of Cork harbor. It is said he was in Dublin on the night of the 2d July last, and has been concealed ever since. The people of the boat which carried him to France, as soon as they landed him, set sail with his baggage in consequence of which he wrote to government, describing the people.

General Gardner, on this occasion sent for all the Croshaven people, and soon picked them out; they are now in irons on board the guard ship in this harbor.

According to another account, Thomas Emmet was in company with O'Connor, and on their reaching the coast of Britany the two gentlemen were marched before the country under an escort of soldiers, and the boat seized, and two soldiers put on board. The people of the boat enraged at being disappointed of their expected reward, threw the soldiers overboard, and put to sea, bringing off with them all the trunks and boxes, which have been given up to Lord Gardner, and are said to contain a great many curious plans, and a correspondence of the most extraordinary & important nature.

Georges returns to the coast to assist at the landing of Gouffet St. Victor (condemned by the sentence passed upon the affair of the 3d Nivose,) and ten other brigands.

In the early part of this month, a third landing is effected; it is Pichegru, enne.

LEXINGTON, MAY 15.

FESTIVAL.

Saturday, the 12th inst. being the day fixed on by the republicans for celebrating the cession of Louisiana to the United States; the military companies, commanded by Captains Bodley, Wyatt, Vanpelt, and Kiser, paraded in this town, and after going through their various evolutions, marched out to Mr. Maxwell's spring, accompanied by a large and respectable concourse of citizens, among whom were the Hon. John Breckinridge, one of our Senators in Congress, and the Hon. Harry Innes, Judge of the Federal Court for the Kentucky District; where they partook of an elegant repast, provided for the occasion; after which the following toasts were drank, each of which followed by three cheers, and a discharge of musketry from the military companies:

1. The event we celebrate.

2. Thomas Jefferson, whose talents, patriotism and public services, endear him to the people—may he long continue in the presidential chair.

3. Aaron Burr—May his successors never misinterpret the votes of the people.

4. Monroe and Livingston—The plaudits of their country, and the thanks of unborn millions are due for the distinguished part they have taken to extend the empire of liberty.

5. The people of Louisiana, raised to the rank of citizens—May they soon add another star to the American Constellation.

6. The Mississippi; the great emporium of the Western commerce—May its waters prove an antedote to modern federalism.

7. Amicable negotiation in preference to the desolation of war.

8. Commerce with all nations—May national prejudices, if any exist in the Western part of our union, be exported to sea with the first flood of our waters.

9. The ship-builders of the Western country—May their exertions prove a source of public and of private wealth.

10. The constitution of the United States; the world's best hope—May it long prove to the nations of the old world, the practicability of republicanism.

11. Economy in the management of our finances—honest friendship with foreign nations—moderation at home, and a wise administration of the government in all its departments.

12. The three departments of the government—May their rights be known and maintained, and no invasion of one upon the just and rightful prerogatives of the others.

13. The Indian tribes—May they forget war, and soon know the blessings of peace and civilization.

14. Captains Lewis and Clarke—May their enterprise prove beneficial to the United States, and their services meet the grateful acknowledgements of a generous people.

15. The Missouri—May its source soon be known, and the forests which obscure it, give place to cultivated fields.

16. Our Senators and Representatives in Congress.

17. The fair daughters of America—May their smiles sweeten the cares of life, and teach men virtue.

VOLUNTEERS.

After Mr Breckinridge had retired, John Breckinridge, our Senator in Congress—Virtue—patriotism.

The Volunteers of last fall.

Gen. Charles Scott—The tried veteran and firm patriot.

The company returned to town in the same order—the military companies formed round the court-house, and fired 18 volleys.

The pleasures of the day closed with a ball at Mr. Bradley's, where, amidst a brilliant assemblage of ladies, beauty presided, and joy beamed from every eye.

PARIS, May 14th, 1804.

On Saturday, the 12th inst. being the day recommended for commemorating the acquisition of Louisiana to the United States, a large and respectable collection of citizens from Paris and its vicinity convened under an arbour prepared for the occasion, where great hilarity prevailed, and the utmost decorum was observed during the day. After an elegant dinner, the following toasts were introduced:

1. The 30th of April, 1803, the day that added Louisiana to the United States of America—May the wife policy which acquired it, ever be duly appreciated by a grateful people.

2. The President of the United States, moves from it, the house shall be at the true patriot and benefactor of his my disposal until such person may country—May his calumniators learn that "error of opinion may be tolerated where reason is left free to combat it."

3. The present administration—May we never forget the wisdom of its measures.

4. Livingston and Monroe, the able envoys, who negotiated the treaty for the acquisition of Louisiana.

5. Our brothers of Louisiana: May they soon feel the benign influence of freedom and equal laws.

6. Governor Claiborne and Gen. Wilkinson: They have our thanks for their meritorious conduct, when receiving possession of the newly acquired province.

7. The farmers, mechanics and merchants of the Western country: May their labours, while they add wealth to the union, be reciprocally beneficial to each other.

8. The ship-builders on the Mississippi and its tributary streams: May their enterprise and industry receive the patronage of our country.

9. Our fleet in the Mediterranean: success to its operations: May it speedily reclaim our captive citizens from bondage, and terminate the war with the Tyroleans, or teach them justice from the mouth of the cannon.

10. Peace to the deluded nations of Europe: May they learn happiness by imitating our institutions and examples.

11. The liberty of the press: May it ever be as free as at present, to investigate the official conduct of the officers of government, it being a good corrective of political errors.

12. The freedom of religion, and freedom of election: blessings we cannot too highly estimate: Let us always exercise, protect and preserve them, with the temperance and patriotism which become freemen.

13. The deceased hero and statesman George Washington: May his memory ever inspire Americans with gratitude.

14. The venerable Benjamin Franklin, the statesman and philosopher: May his virtues be recorded in the hearts of all true lovers of their country.

15. The heroes who fought and bled in defence of American liberty: May their descendants ever be as prompt in opposing tyranny.

16. The Congress of the United States: May its deliberations always be guided by wisdom, and a desire to promote the welfare of the people.

17. The Kentucky fair: May they bestow themselves on the deserving only.

MONTPELIER MEDICAL WELL. In Scott county, Kentucky, on the waters of Lacombe's run, about ten miles from Georgetown, twenty from Lexington, and fifteen from Frankfort, the property of the subscriber.

Dear Citizens of Kentucky, and the adjacent states,

The water of this well possesses the qualities of the Salt and Sulphur Springs at the Mud Lick; but much more efficacious as the qualities are combined in the same water, and may properly be called a Salinie Sulphuric, Medicinal Well. This communication should have been made previous to this time; but was delayed from an ardent wish that a belief of the efficacy of the above water should be confirmed by the experience of last year. I am now happy in stating that the water is equal to any in this state, or any other state, in curing many of those maladies which infect & weaken the human constitution. The efficacy of the water combined with its central & convenient situation to the most populous parts of the state, will make it of much greater public utility. Last season, from 50 to 100 people attended this spring, among whom many uncommon & extraordinary cures were effected by drinking the water. The roads to this Medicinal Spring from the different populous parts of this country, are very good, and carriages may pass with convenience.

Preparations are making for the accommodation of visitors.

Excellent pasture may be had—more than ten acres of wheat and grass are now ready to receive horses &c. at a moderate price.

In a few weeks preparations will be made to accommodate a considerable number of visitors. Any person will be privileged to build a house for their accommodation, which shall belong to such person as long as he may think proper to occupy it—and when such person replies to the subscriber.

Capt. Dashwood, arrived at Boston from Bordeaux, informs that Moreau was still in confinement, and that the commander of the Consular Guards, had also been arrested as an accomplice in the late conspiracy against the life of Bonaparte, and after a summary trial, was immediately shot. Pichegrus and Moreau it was expected, would meet the same fate.

The accounts received from Port-

On the 16th, a horrible massacre commenced in Port-au-Prince, which was continued four days during which upwards of four hundred persons were killed. Desfaines had arrived there on his way to St. Domingo, against which he was determined to bring all his forces: but as he expressed himself, would leave no whites in his rear.

The Celebrated Imported, and Real, season, and insurance to be sent with the bred Turf Horse.

Royalist,

HAS arrived from New-York, and will stand this season at the same stable with Paymaster, in this place, and all under the direction and management of Mr. Peter Lott. He will be let to mares at the moderate price of $0 dollars, to be discharged at any time before the 1st of September by the payment of 2 dollars; 40 dollars to ensure a foal, to be returned if such should not be the case, if the mare remains the property of the person who put her to the horse, with 1 dollar to the groom for each mare, paid at the stable door. Attest notes for 30 dollars the season and 40 for insurance, to be sent with the mare, payable the 1st of January next.

ROYALIS is a full blooded horse he was bred by his royal highness the Prince of Wales, and sold to Thomas Bullock esq. who kept him as a racer until he was purchased by Mr. Abraham Skinner, who imported him in the ship James, from England to New-York. He is a beautiful bay, handsomely marked, with a star and stripe, 15 hands 3 inches high, well proportioned, fine action, free from all blemishes, and white in England, performed equal to any horse of his age, as may be seen by the racing calenders, which are in the possession of Mr. Lott, free for the perusal of any gentleman. He has stood several seasons in America, and his colts are at least equal to any horse's, and are allowed, by competent judges to bid fair to make excellent racers.

ALEXIS, OR THE SHEPHERD'S ADVICE.

WRITTEN BY A CAROLINIAN.

THE sun in the main had reclin'd,
And quickly departed the day;
The breezes blew pleasant and mild,
And drove the thick shadows away.

It was then by the side of a cot,
Surrounded by youths of the plain,
Alexis all cares quite forgot,
Recited the pastoral strain:

Ye shepherds attend to my lay!
Ye maidens approach this glad place.
No heids o'er the wild mountains stray,
Nor hunter now urges the chase.

The moon appears pleasantly bright,
All nature looks peaceful and still;
Each meadow seems form'd for delight,
And Zephyrus sports on the rill!

What swain at his lot can repine?
Or wish to rich cities to go?
Felicity who would resign,
For luxury, sorrow and woe?

No meads there are scented with hay,
No blossoms disclose their perfume;
The lilies transplanted decay,
And the violet loses its bloom.

Then who from these valleys would part?
Where landscapes continually smile?
Whose damsels can govern the heart,
And the pangs of each bosom beguile?

Believe me the truth I declare.
That Providence blesses this plain;
For riches are banish'd with care,
And happiness here holds her reign."

Original jeu d'esprit.—A certain Judge elevated with the juice of the grape, entered a barber's shop in this vicinity (says a gazette printed in the state of New-York) a few weeks since, to get shaved. After the business was accomplished, he tendered the barber six-pence, who took it and returned three-pence change. "But how is this," exclaimed his honour, "you have always charged six-pence for shaving, and here you charged but three-pence." "True," replied the barber, "but you were half-shaved before."
